

BOND BLOCKADE LIFTED BY ORDER OF WALL STREET

Sales, However, Must Not Disturb Collateral Loan Moratorium.

The financial blockade of Wall street was slightly raised to-day to permit of transactions in bonds among investment bankers, provided that sales do not disturb the collateral loan moratorium. A circular letter to this effect was sent out signed by the following leading investment bankers: Brown Bros. & Co., Kissel, Kinnicut & Co.; Guaranty Trust Company, William A. Read & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., Remick, Hodges & Co. and White, Weld & Co. in it they say:

"Placing of securities owned by dealers with their private customers should be approved where securities can be sold without disturbing the collateral loan situation. Transactions tending toward public quotations or creating impression of an active or even semi-active market would unquestionably seriously disturb the loan situation. Transactions with bargain hunters should not be countenanced. Prices should conform to the spirit which has prevailed during the past few weeks. It should be the policy of dealers whenever securities are sold to apply the proceeds toward liquidation of loans."

New bond issues by either private corporations or municipalities are completely blocked by announcement of the investment bankers "that the present situation does not warrant any attempt to issue long time bonds, but that refunding of maturing obligations should be accomplished through short time financing."

A Hat Here for Every Face; The Price $5

Seems almost unbelievable, come to think about it, that there should be literally hundreds of hats here during a week, and every hat different, and not hundreds of hats, but the entire millinery salons, but hundreds at our famous $5 price.

There's a youthful looking velvet sailor, low and flat, that copies a favorite "Reboux" idea—this has a brim of dull Roman silk.

And there's a snug fitting toque of velvet outlined with metal braid with a perfect bird's head at one side—made entirely of sequins. A tall feather tops the hat.

The pictured hat is one with the greatest amount of "dash"—a ruche, outlined with feather "feet-type." This looks best worn quite far down one side, as the starch cap goes—and these are but three selected at random.

Poppy Trimmed Turbans at $1.95

A copy of an imported model that has gained a great vogue. It's a close-fitting TURBAN in the new shape, made of BLACK SILK VELVET and trimmed with two large silk velvet poppies. As the same price we also offer new BLACK SILK VELVET SAILORS with two silk velvet poppies in the front.

Plush Dress Hat Shapes at $1.25

A special purchase from an overstocked manufacturer. Excellent new TURBAN and SAILOR SHAPES—polished tops; black, brown and navy.

Close-Fitting Turbans of Silk Velvet Dress Shapes Black Silk Velvet, at 95¢ at $1.95

New sailors with soft crowns; Beautifully finished; very high jockey caps and dress shapes.

Smart Street Hats at $2.95

Ready-to-wear millinery in an alluring variety of smart styles. Black silk velvet principally; trimmed with all the new fancy effects.
